Song 4 Praise the Lord

Psalm 147 calls all to praise the Lord for rebuilding Jerusalem, healing the brokenhearted, numbering the stars, providing rain and food, and giving His word and statutes uniquely to Israel.

Come, praise the Lord with joyful hearts
Sing to our God, for it is right and beautiful

The Lord rebuilds His city with care
He gathers His scattered children from afar

He mends the broken hearts
And heals every wound with His gentle touch

He knows the stars by name
And calls each one into its place

Our Lord is mighty, great beyond measure
His wisdom reaches far beyond our understanding

He lifts the lowly and gives them strength

But humbles the proud and brings them low

He fills the sky with clouds
And sends refreshing rain upon the earth

He makes grass spring up on the hills
And feeds every creature in the field

He finds no joy in the power of horses
Nor pleasure in the strength of man

The Lord delights in those who honor Him
In those who trust in His unfailing love

He strengthens the gates of your home
He blesses your children within your walls

He brings peace to your land
And satisfies you with the finest harvest

He sends His command across the world

His word moves swiftly to fulfill His will

He spreads snow like a white blanket
He scatters frost like dust upon the ground

He hurls down hail like stones
Who can stand before His winter chill?

He speaks His word and the ice melts away
He stirs the wind and the waters flow freely

He reveals His words to His people
His laws and ways to those who belong to Him

No other nation has received such blessing
They have not known His righteous ways

Praise the Lord
It is good and wonderful to praise Him
